Applying for Transfer Credit

Rich Schwartz
August 20, 2009

Generally, the way that transfer credit works is that you’ve taken a course at another university that is equivalent to one of our undergraduate math courses. If you have done this, you should provide the following information in writing.

• A copy of the syllabus of the course you’ve taken elsewhere.

• A copy of the transcript showing your grade in this course.

• The name of the course at Brown you’d like credit for.

You should give all this information to Audrey Aguiar in the undergraduate office. I will then look over the material and make a decision. If everything is in order, I’ll almost certainly approve the application.

In case you can’t supply the above information, but still feel that you deserve transfer credit, you should contact me over email. If we can’t handle the situation over email, you should make an appointment to see me.
